Invitation to Participate in the Fall 2010 Public Review of Proposed Changes for the 2011 National Energy Code of Canada for Buildings

The Province of BC and the Canadian Commission on Building and Fire Codes (CCBFC) invite you to participate in a public review of proposed changes for the 2011 National Energy Code of Canada for Buildings (NECB). The public review is one of the main steps in the process for developing model national code documents and provides a nation-wide forum where anyone can review and comment on the changes proposed.

The 2011 NECB is a model code that is developed by the CCBFC in partnership with the provinces/ territories and the National Research Council of Canada. The Province of BC is considering the adoption of this model code into Provincial building regulations. The Fall 2010 public review is seeking comments on a new objective, new functional statements, and proposed technical changes.

This national public review takes place from October 4 to November 26, 2010 on the National Codes website.

Thank you for contributing to the development of Canada's National Model Construction Codes.
