The Application for Dispute Resolution filed by the landlord makes the following claims:

- a. An Order for Possession for non-payment of rent
- b. A monetary order in the sum of $3740 for unpaid rent and damages
- c. An Order to retain the security deposit.
- d. An order to recover the cost of the filing fee

A hearing was conducted by conference call in the presence of the applicant and in the absence of the respondent although duly served. On the basis of the solemnly affirmed evidence presented at that hearing, a decision has been reached. All of the evidence was carefully considered.

I find that the 10 Notice to End Tenancy was sufficiently served on the Tenant by posting on January 19, 2018. Further I find that the Application for Dispute Resolution and Notice of Dispute Resolution Hearing was sufficiently served on the respondent by mailing, by registered mail to where the respondent resides on February 10, 2018. With respect to each of the applicant's claims I find as follows:

Issue(s) to be Decided:

The issues to be decided are as follows:

- a. Whether the landlord is entitled to an Order for Possession?
- b. Whether the landlord is entitled to A Monetary Order and if so how much?
- c. Whether the landlord is entitled to retain all or a portion of the security deposit/pet deposit?
- d. Whether the landlord is entitled to recover the cost of the filing fee?

Background and Evidence:

The parties entered into a written tenancy agreement approximately 3 years ago. The tenant paid a security deposit of $445 at the start of the tenancy. The present rent is $935 per month payable in advance on the first day of each month.

The tenant failed to pay the rent for the months of December 2017 ($300 is owed), January 2018 ($935 is owed), February 2018 ($935 is owed), March 2018 ($935 is owed) and April 2018 ($467.50 is owed from April 1, 2018 to April 15, 2018) and the sum of $3572.50 is outstanding.

It appears the tenant has vacated the rental unit although he has failed to remove many of his belongings and failed to clean the rental unit.

Analysis - Order of Possession:

I determined the landlord was entitled to an Order for Possession. There is outstanding rent. The Tenant(s) have not made an application to set aside the Notice to End Tenancy and the time to do so has expired. In such situations the Residential Tenancy Act provides the tenant is conclusively presumed to have accepted that the tenancy ends on the effective date of the notice, and must vacate the rental unit by that date. Accordingly, I granted the landlord an Order for Possession on 2 days notice..

The tenant must be served with this Order as soon as possible. Should the tenant fail to comply with this Order, the landlord may register the Order with the Supreme Court of British Columbia for enforcement.

Analysis - Monetary Order and Cost of Filing fee:

I determined the tenant has failed to pay the rent for the month(s) of December 2017 ($300 is owed), January 2018 ($935 is owed), February 2018 ($935 is owed), March 2018 ($935 is owed) and April 2018 ($467.50 is owed from April 1, 2018 to April 15, 2018) and the sum of $3572.50 is outstanding. I determined the landlord has given sufficient notice of their intention to claim for all of last month as provided in the Application for Dispute Resolution. I granted the landlord a monetary order in the sum of $3572.50 plus the sum of $100 in respect of the filing fee for a total of $3672.50.

Security Deposit:

I determined the security deposit plus interest totals the sum of $445. I ordered the landlord may retain this sum thus reducing the amount outstanding under this monetary order to the sum of $3227.50.

Conclusion:

I granted an Order of Possession on 2 days notice. I ordered that the Landlord shall retain the security deposit of $445. In addition I further ordered that the Tenant(s) pay to the Landlord(s) the sum of $3227.50.

It is further Ordered that this sum be paid forthwith. The applicant is given a formal Order in the above terms and the respondent must be served with a copy of this Order as soon as possible.

Should the respondent fail to comply with this Order, the Order may be filed in the Small Claims division of the Provincial Court and enforced as an Order of that Court.

This decision is final and binding on both parties.

This decision is made on authority delegated to me by the Director of the Residential Tenancy Branch under section 9.1(1) of the Residential Tenancy Act.
